From the Paris Gazette, dated April 7.

Paris, April 7.

WE have receiv'd Advice that the Chevalier de Rambure, Commander of the Proteus, who could not put to Sea till the 20th of laſt Month, having been forc'd back into Harbour by the Guſt of Wind that blew on the 17th; return'd into Dunkirk on the 31ſt, and has brought the following News. He arriv'd the 23d about Noon at the Entrance into the River or Bay of Edinbourg: Count Forbin got not thither till Six in the Evening, nor did he enter into the Bay. The 24th at Break of Day, he diſcover'd the Enemy's Fleet conſiſting of 28 Men of War; this oblig'd him to ſet Sail agen, and to ſteer his Courſe to the North Eaſt, that he might gain, according to his firſt Deſign, the Port of Inverneſs, which is a very ſafe Harbour. The Enemy made after him, as did likewiſe the Chevalier de Rambure, who about 6 in the Evening ſaw an Engliſh Ship of 60 Guns, follow'd by 8 others to ſupport her, come up near to the Sailsbury, and the Auguſte, commanded by the Chevaliers Nangis and de Tourouvre. Some Time after, the Engliſh Ship tacking about upon the Salisbury, there was a ſharp Diſpute between them, which ended at nine at Night, at which time the Engliſh Man of War began to ſheer off, having ſuffer'd much in the Action. The 25th, in the Morning, the Chevalier de Rambure, who had not been able to come up with the Fleet, loſt ſight of it; however he kept on his Courſe, Steering Eaſt North-Eaſt. In a little time he diſcover'd 18 of the Enemy's Ships, who gave him Chace. He had ſight of them agen on the 26th, ſo that not knowing the place of Rendezvous appointed by Count Forbin, and ſeeing himſelf ſurrrounded by the Enemy, he thought fit to return to Dunkirk, according to his firſt Inſtructions. The Chevalier de Rambure adds, that while he was at the Entrance into the Firth of Edinburg, he heard by a Gentleman, who came on board him, and by three Pilots whom he has brought with him, that the Nobility and common People had made and Sign'd a Convention or Confederacy in favour of the pretended Prince of Wales: That in all Scotland there were not 1500 Men of a contrary Opinion, and that a great Man of the Country was at the Head of 10000 Men in Arms, who were ready to receive that Prince.

From the Amſterdam Gazette, dated April 10.

Madrid, March 20. The King has receiv'd Advice by an extraordinary Courier of the Departure of the pretended Prince of Wales for Dunkirk, in order to imbark for Scotland, where the Nobility and the common People long for his Arrival: Nay, 'tis ſaid that the Counties of Northumberland, Cumberland, and Weſtmorland in England will aſſiſt the Scotch Malecontents. This News is receiv'd here with the greater Joy, becauſe we flatter our ſelves that if this Enterprize meet with ſucceſs, it will oblige the Enemy to alter their Deſigns, and incline the King of Portugal to quit the Grand Alliance, and to accept the advantageous Offers which the two Crowns formerly made him, and which he has hitherto rejected. The King applies himſelf chiefly to the Affairs of the War, and to the Preparatives for the next Campaign. 'Twas given out ſome Days ago, that the Duke of Orleans was to command on the Frontiers of Portugal, but we hear no more of it. That Prince has put off his Departure for Arragon till the End of this Month: He will firſt be ſatisfy'd that due Meaſures are taken to ſupply him with the Proviſions and other Neceſſaries that are promis'd him, and to this end he has frequent Conferences with the Undertakers. Since the Enemies have ſent ſome Succours to Denia, and to Alicant, our Troops are retir'd from the Neighbourhood of thoſe Places, which they held in a manner block'd up, and now find difficulty enough to preſerve the Country from the Incurſions of the Enemy, whoſe Parties often return with Booty. They write from Arragon that the Capuchins of Albaletta, having been ſuſpected of a Deſign to Nail up the Cannon in that Place, and which was made uſe of in the Siege of Lerida, are all made Priſoners; and that four of them, who were the Ring-leaders of the Plot, are ſent to Saragoſſa to be puniſh'd, and the others to Catalonia. Their Convent was ras'd. Strict ſearch is made in Arragon for ſuch as keep Arms in their Houſes contrary to the Prohibition, and they write from Saragoſſa, that a Burgher of that City was like to have been ſent to the Gallies, becauſe ſome Arms were found in his Houſe, even though he made it appear, that an Officer had given them to him to keep. Yeſterday the Marquis of Bedmar went to Court, and cover'd himſelf in the King's Preſence, as Grandee of Spain. A Veſſel from the Havana is arriv'd at Cadiz, by which we hear that M. du Caſſe was waiting there for the Fleet from New Spain, and that he had ſent four Men of War to meet it. Some French Privateers have brought ſome Prizes into Vigo, and the Groyne.

From the Antwerp Courant, dated April 10.

Paris, April 6. The March of the Troops of the King's Houſhold for the Netherlands is put off for eight Days, that is to ſay, till the 15th. Letters from Madrid of the 24th of March ſay, that the King and Queen went that Morning to Buen Retiro, where they are to ſtay till after Eaſter, which gives yet greater Grounds to believe that his Catholick Majeſty will not this Year go into the Field. Cardinal Portocarrero, Archbiſhop of Toledo, and the Chapter of that City have lent a great Sum of Money to the King, which has been ſent to Arragon to pay the Spaniſh Troops. The Baggage of the Duke of Orleans ſet out from hence for Saragoſſa the 23d of March, and his Royal Highneſs was to follow it on the 30th. The time of the Duke of Vendome's Departure for Liſle is yet uncertain, and is likely to be ſo, till Advice come of the Duke of Marlborough's Arrival in Holland.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated April 20.

Hague, April 8. Prince Eugene of Savoy arriv'd here at 7 this Morning: He alighted at the Hotel of M. Heims, the Emperour's Envoy, where ſeveral Apartments were got ready for him. The Duke of Marlborough is alſo daily expected here. We have receiv'd Advice that 13 French Men of War, or Privateers paſs'd 2 Days ago by the Height of Scheveling, having been driven back Northwards by the Weſterly Winds: And that on Tueſday laſt 12 Engliſh Men of War were Cruizing before Valkeren, to indeavour to intercept the French in their return to Dunkirk.

The Grand Cephalick or Head-Snuff approved by the moſt eminent Phyſicians in London, to be the only ſort capable of curing all the Diſtempers of the Head and Brain, and often preſcribed by them as ſuch in the moſt ſtubborn and dangerous Caſes, as Apoplexies, Epilepſies, Lethargies, Vertigoes, Megrim, Pains in the Head, Vapours, Impoſthumes, loſs of Memory, Deafneſs, Sore Eyes, &c. two Papers at moſt times making a perfect Cure, 'tis a peculiar Compoſition different from all other Snuffs, and different in its Operation and Effects, twice or thrice uſing it, doing infinitely more real good, than 50 times uſing any other ſort, as will manifeſtly, appear to all that ſhall try it, and may poſſibly retrieve Life in Apoplexies and other violent Diſtempers of the Head, when other ſorts ſhall be only the Introducers of Ruin and Death, this being to be uſed Medicinally, as there is occaſion, not immoderately and for faſhion ſake, as the Snuff-takers do their Spaniſh and other pernicious Snuffs in vogue; the dangerous Conſequences of which Practice being at large obſerved in the printed Directions.
